GLENDALE CIVIC CENTER FEATURED IN NEW TV SHOW AS THE CENTERPIECE OF DOWNTOWN

GLENDALE, Ariz. – The building many people refer to as the crown jewel of downtown Glendale is featured in a new TV show called “The City’s Centerpiece: The Glendale Civic Center.” The show, produced by Glendale 11 TV, will debut on Sunday, August 14, at 7:30 p.m. on Glendale 11.

The 30-minute documentary tells the story of the many uses of the building through clients who use the facility and city staff who work there. A bride and groom share their experience beginning with the early planning stages where they sift through details with their event coordinator all the way to their actual wedding day. Corporate events and trade shows are also featured with interviews from clients who praise the facility for its multi-purpose ability and excellent customer service. Civic Center staff, including the executive caterer, is also in the show telling the story of the history of the building and why the facility is successful in hosting nearly 300 events a year.

“This TV show is an opportunity for our television viewers to see behind the scenes, meet that top notch Civic Center staff and hear from the many happy clients who use the facility and come back each year for events, parties and meetings,” said Laurie Berg Sapp, Glendale 11 Station Manager. “The camera captures the beautiful ambience inside the building while letting you get a greater feel for the people who work there and how customer service is critical to their success.”

“The City’s Centerpiece: The Glendale Civic Center” can be seen on Glendale 11 TV every Sunday at 7:30 p.m. and at various times throughout the week. Online viewers can watch it at www.glendaleaz.com/video. For more information about the Glendale Civic Center, visit www.glendaleciviccenter.com.
